

Illness Cuts Attendance in Hope Schools

Superintendent James H. Jones said today attendance at Junior-Senior High school Tuesday is about 85 per cent of normal due to illness. He reported between 140-145 students are out. Normal attendance is from 97 to 98 per cent.

Three of the grade schools are running about normal but one is about 10 per cent below normal. Mr. Jones said. He indicated the attendance drop started about Thursday of last week and really hit heavily Monday when 115 were reported absent.

Several members of the football squad are sick. The Bobcats were in pretty good shape last Friday when Texarkana cancelled out the game because of illness to players. The Hope team is scheduled to take on a tough conference foe here Friday night when Crossett comes to town. Illness to any of the players could seriously handicap the Bobcats.

Although the general belief is the Asian flu has spread from other areas to Hope, this hasn't been established as the disease which has hit the student ranks.

Sen. McClellan Hints at Labor Legislation

By GORDON BROWN

WASHINGTON (AP)—It is too early to predict just what legislation will come out of the Senate rackets investigation but Sen. McClellan has given clear hints of some things he has in mind.

McClellan is chairman of the Senate committee conducting the inquiry into improper activities of labor and management.

Not long ago in New York McClellan said he hopes that Congress can enact legislation prescribing minimum basic requirements for operation of labor unions.

For instance, he said, there should be laws requiring democratic election of union officials by a union membership and requiring filing of financial reports showing members and the public how union funds are handled.

He would put some teeth into the requirements.

The club would be simply this: unions that failed to obey would be deprived of their present tax-exempt status.

Unions stepping out of line would be compelled to pay federal income taxes. In the case of big unions with big incomes, this might be quite a consideration.

As McClellan phrased it, "This is an advantage I am sure they (the unions) would not want to lose."

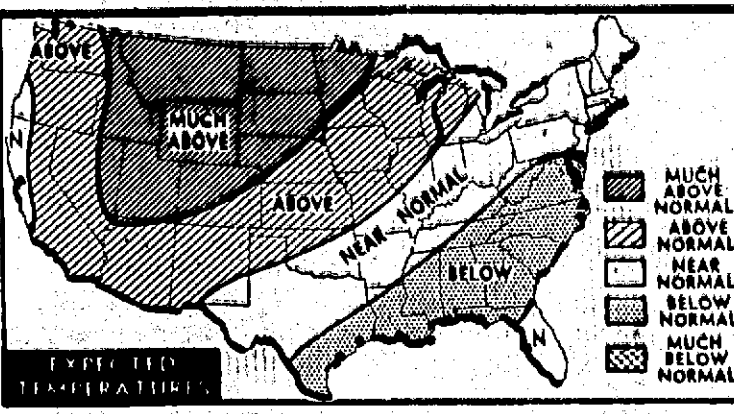

McClellan suggested that legislation might also be directed against management officials who conspire with corrupt leaders "to their mutual benefit and advantage and to the harm and detriment of the working man."

McClellan had a hand in the Little Rock school crisis in an early stage.

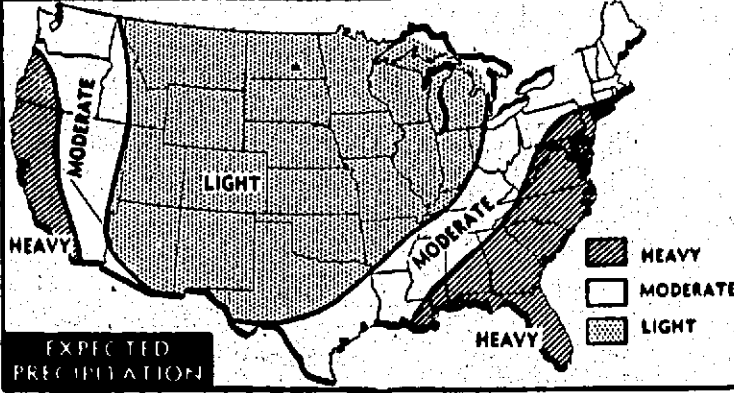

When Gov. Orval Faubus first called out the Arkansas National Guard he consulted McClellan, then in Arkansas, and suggested he ask the Justice Department what solution might be worked out.

McClellan did so and the department, at his request, sent a man to Little Rock.

However, at that time the Justice Department wasn't officially in the court case and the representative felt he could make no commitment. Talk was that Faubus would have withdrawn the guard in exchange for an agreement that the nine Negro students be kept out of Central High School until the courts decided the case involving the governor's authority.

Temperatures from now until November are expected to average above-normal over the western half of the nation and also in the western Great Lakes region and upper Mississippi Valley. Below-normal temperatures are expected to prevail in the Middle and South Atlantic States and along the Gulf Coast. In other areas about-normal October temperatures are predicted.

Precipitation from now until November is expected to be sub-normal over much of the country lying between the Mississippi River and the Rockies, but above-normal amounts are indicated east of the Appalachians and along the central and southern portions of the West Coast. In unspecified areas, about-normal precipitation is anticipated.

Polish Leader Undergoing a Real Test

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

Wladyslaw Gomulka is undergoing a severe new test of his strength in his attempt to rule Poland as a semi-independent Communist leader.

The rioting which broke out in Warsaw last Thursday was started by students in protest against the suppression of a newspaper which had consistently accused Gomulka of subservience to Soviet Russia.

Over the week end, young hoodlums took the leading part in the riots. But the students continued to demand that the ban on their weekly newspaper Pro Prosty (Plain Speaking) be removed.

So far, Gomulka's civil militia-men who constitute the main police force have been able to break up all disorderly assemblies without any serious bloodshed.

But where they started out by using tear gas and baton gas, they are now carrying rifles.

The question is whether the rioting can be confined to its present limits. The big danger is that industrial workers might decide to start strikes to back up their own demands for greater freedom and higher pay.

While Gomulka is facing this situation, he is still under attack by "Stalinist" members of his Communist Party who do not like his independent attitude and accuse him of leading Poland back toward capitalism.

Soviet Russia probably is watching the Warsaw situation with as much interest as is Gomulka.

Gomulka is no pin-up boy in Moscow. His election as first secretary of the Communist Party last October after imprisonment as a rebel, was a big defeat for Russian Communism. The only kind of Communist that Russia likes is one who follows the Moscow party line.

If Gomulka lost control of the situation because of anti-government riots, it is certain that Russia would have to intervene as it did and Hungary and Czechoslovakia would be in a bad way.

To Speed Up Discussion of Disarmament

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States and its allies today planned to seek speedy discussion of their new disarmament plan as the U.N. Assembly's chief Political Committee moved into action.

The Western delegates were expected to put the resolution before the committee tomorrow and to seek immediate discussion of it.

Indian Delegate V. K. Krishna Menon, meanwhile, delayed unveiling his own rival arms plan, which it had been expected would be outlined in policy speech today to the Assembly.

An Indian spokesman said Menon's resolution had been held back until tomorrow. He added that Indian delegates will confer tonight with U.S. disarmament negotiator Harold E. Stassen in an attempt to bring the U.S. and Indian arms views closer together.

The Indian proposal like companion schemes put forth by Russia and Japan, calls for suspension of all nuclear test subject to inspection but prior to actual disarmament.

The Western plan specifies suspension of nuclear tests only after agreement is reached to stop using atomic material for weapons, reduce armed forces and evolve a comprehensive system of inspection.

The Western proposals include setting up an inspection system to insure that ending rockets through outer space would be for peaceful and scientific purposes only.

The United States acknowledged it is studying what possible effect the launching of the Soviet space satellite will have on the disarmament picture and said it no doubt would have some proposals to make on that score in the future.

Elsewhere in the U.N., Syrian Foreign Minister Salah Bitar charged in a heated speech before the Assembly that the United States had engineered sub-

A Cinderella Girl Fears Acting Career Is Typed

By MAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Shirley Jones is a sweet, old-fashioned girl who doesn't want to spend the rest of her life acting like a sweet, old-fashioned girl.

Critics have hailed the Cinderella-like rise of the young film star, but Miss Jones herself definitely doesn't want to remain a Cinderella forever.

"I'm afraid too many people think I'm going to be a permanent figure in the picture business," she said. "But no human being is really that way. I want to be able to portray all the emotions of a normal girl living in the present part of the 20th century."

Shirley, a Smithton, Pa., brewer's daughter has had only one small setback in her career. She failed to win a contest to represent her state in the "Miss America" beauty contest. But after appearing in the Pittsburgh Civic Light Opera she won again.

Shirley's answer was to diet down to a svelte 113 pounds she's only 5 feet 6 inches tall. "April Love," costarring Pat Boone, only a barn chum could find fault with her figure now.

"This is the first modern-day picture I've been in," she said, smiling. "And I'm out of my crinolines at last—and into blue jeans."

The film is a rural harness racing epic and is perhaps most notable for the fact it contains no drug addicts or juvenile delinquents.

Resurrected Union Papers to Be Checked

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate rack-et investigators said today they hope to establish tomorrow how many Teamsters' Union election documents have been salvaged from a hotel incinerator.

James R. Hoffa, elected president of the Teamsters at the union convention in Miami last Friday, said he understood all the papers have been found and forwarded here.

However, Robert F. Kennedy, chief counsel of the Senate Rack-et Committee, said a union attorney had told him that he knew some of the documents were gone but didn't know how many were missing.

The documents were subpoenaed by the committee immediately after Hoffa's election in a sequel to charges that the balloting had been rigged to assure his victory in the face of corruption charges against him.

The subpoena was served on Joe Konoza, secretary of the convention Credentials Committee. It directed him to produce all documents relating to the seating of delegates and the election of officers.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark), chairman of the Senate committee, issued a statement late yesterday saying a Teamsters attorney has reported that a hotel maid had thrown the documents in a Miami Beach hotel incinerator.

McClellan also said that when Senate investigators requested the name of the maid so that she might be interviewed they were told she had died of a heart attack.

However, the union attorney was quoted as saying that he felt that most of the documents could be recovered and that those that were would be made available to the committee tomorrow.

In Miami, the Eden Roc Hotel, the convention headquarters, said that a day maid who had worked in the Teamsters' Eden Roc office died of a heart attack Oct. 3.

The woman, identified as Mrs. Jane Lockhart, 52.

McClellan, in his statement here said, "The committee will be interested in determining whether this incident is just another of the many strange coincidences that the committee has encountered in trying to secure Teamsters records, or if it is in fact a willful defiance of the committee's authority and an attempt to obstruct its investigation."

October Is Membership Month in PTA

Parents of Junior and Senior High School students are reminded that October is P.T.A. membership month.

The membership committee, in the next few days will endeavor to contact all parents of the Junior-Senior High School students to obtain their membership. The committee urges parents and citizens of this community to join the P.T.A.

Stand by the youth, he needs you as much now as he did in the elementary grades.

"Don't be a drop-out parent. Join your High School P.T.A. now. Do it for the sake of your own teenager. Do it as an example of responsible citizenship in a free society. Do it to let youth know America needs the best that young people can offer. If we would build a better tomorrow, let's do it with youth and remember, the better tomorrow begins today," officials of the P.T.A. urged.

Now is the time to graduate into the High School P.T.A.

Gov. Faubus' Charge in L.R. Impasse Denied by High School Girl

Segregationists Hit City-Wide Prayer in L. R.

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Segregationist groups sought today to bulwark the scheduled city-wide prayer meeting Saturday, sponsored by prominent church and business leaders.

Clergymen of all faiths have urged churchgoers to attend 11 a.m. Oct. 12 worship services to help reach a powerful moral force in behalf of peace and order.

The Rev. Dunbar H. Ogden, Jr., president of the greater Little Rock ministerial association is one of the leaders in the Saturday prayer meeting in Little Rock churches.

Ogden, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church here, has a Mississippi background, born at Columbus, Miss. He was one of four white ministers who escorted some of the Negro children to school the first time.

Ogden says "any person who takes a place of leadership in a controversial situation finds that there are difficulties to be confronted."

The League of Central High Mothers in a three column newspaper advertisement said "you people who are planning this city-wide prayer meeting are well known to us. For years you have agitated the integration of our schools."

"Are the churches to which you minister integrated churches or are they all-white churches," the league said. "If integration of the races is so morally right that it should be forced upon our children at bayonet point, how can ministers serve churches that refuse to be integrated?"

The league said "many people are having some difficulty in understanding some things about this prayer meeting."

"In praying for peace to prevail," the league said "will it be peace—with the nine Negro children remaining in Central High or peace—with the Negroes in Horace Mann Negro school?"

In another newspaper advertisement the capital citizens council asked "what are the 'moderates' advocating, race-mixing?"

Rep. Brooks Hays, (D-Ark.) is among civic leaders here active in mobilizing moral and spiritual resources of Little Rock "to achieve a peaceful solution of the crisis."

Hays said the time was "rapidly approaching" when the city would be calm enough to warrant the withdrawal of federal troops.

Clergymen who drafted the prayer day basins Ogden, included the Rt. Rev. Robert Brown, Episcopal Bishop of Arkansas; Dr. Marion Boggs, Presbyterian; Dr. Ira Sanders of the Jewish faith; Catholic Bishop Albert Fletcher, and Methodist Bishop Paul E. Martin.

Fire Damages Car of Cotton

A BURNING freight car loaded with cotton was pulled from a northbound freight here this morning and spotted on a siding where local firemen put out the smoldering flames. From 18 to 20 bales were damaged by fire and the others, estimated at about 80, were water damaged. Rail workers and firemen unloaded practically all of the cotton which was consigned from Lubbock, Texas to Little Rock. The blaze was discovered when the freight was pulling through the local yards. One railway worker said it looked as if the freight car had about $15,000 damage. There was no estimate as to the cotton.

Faubus Stands Pat in Charge Against Army

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus' charge that paratroopers have invaded the girls' dressing room at Central High School was denied today by a girl student who said she may have been the original source of the charge.

Catherine Crilghad, a 16-year-old orphan girl who is a sophomore at Central High, told reporters she believes Faubus' charge may be an "exaggerated" version of something she said.

Faubus made the allegation Monday. School officials termed it "intentional." The White House said it was "completely untrue and completely vulgar."

The governor retorted that "we'll prove it when the time comes." He said his charge "was based on complaints from 'molesters'."

The Central High Mothers' League, a segregationist group which has worked closely with Faubus, had indicated to newsmen that Catherine, who lives at an orphanage here, could corroborate the governor's allegations.

But Catherine said that "Somewhere along the line there has been an exaggeration."

"The soldiers do not go into the girls' dressing room," she said. She said troops on corridor duty escort Negro girls to the head of a stairway, across a hall from the entrance to the dressing room, as part of their assignment of preventing any incident as the Negroes move from one class to another.

"If the soldiers lingered at the top of the stairs, they might be able to look into the dressing room when the door was being opened or closed," she said. "But I've never seen them do that."

Soviet 'Moon' Reported to Be Slowing Up

By JOHN A. HARRIS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Reports of additional sightings of the Russian-spawned earth satellite raised hopes today that U.S. scientists might speed up the computing of its precise orbit.

The latest observations showed the satellite was circling the globe right on schedule at a speed of 18,000 miles an hour, although one conflicting set of unofficial calculations showed its speed had dropped to 15,500, possibly indicating the ball might drop from its orbit.

Radio reception was interrupted at times last night from the Russian globe, dubbed "Sputnik" by Soviet authorities, it was launched last Friday.

American experts had hoped last night to obtain, by electronic computation, such detailed orbit data as the exact path of the sphere, its location in outer space, and possibly its precise shape.

That information had been expected from data fed into a giant electronic computer at Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Cambridge, Mass.

However, Dr. Fred L. Whipple, observatory director said the machine did not come up with the expected material because of sufficient or inaccurate data.

The results still were close enough, he said, to track the orbit within one minute and one degree.

The electronic calculations were based on visual sightings in

U. S. Needs TV Camera in Air 'to Keep Tab'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Said the U. S. scientist at the Naval Research Laboratory:

"Maybe we ought to send up our own satellite with a television camera to circle around the Russian satellite. That way we'd know what's going on."

The remark, made both in sorrow and in jest, is a tipoff on the attitude of the men who had to catch the Russian satellite in mid-air and track it down.

It's a mixed attitude. They're irked and frustrated, but they're proud too.

They're irked because they haven't yet received the cooperation that they had been led to expect from Russian scientists during this International Geophysical Year.

They're frustrated because there is nothing they can do about it.

And they're proud because, in spite of this lack of cooperation, they managed in a relatively few hours to latch onto the satellite's path and plot its future course.

A Russian satellite expert has

The trifurcated-down Jones character is seen to good advantage while preparing to take a shower. She has no intention of trying to outdo Gypsy Rose Lee, but she does hope to progress to more mature roles in which she can demonstrate her acting ability more than her talent to slinging.

One of her goals is to appear in a stage show with her husband, Jack Cassidy, who is a veteran of 23 Broadway productions. She and Cassidy, who have bought a home on the West Coast, live quietly and avoid the rounds of cafe society. Shirley not only looks like "the girl next door," she can cook like the mother of the girl next door, and enjoys it.

"I like living," she said. "I like my marriage. I like people. I guess right now I'm in love with the world."

"Eventually I want to raise a family of four or five children. If I can have them and stay in show business I will. But if it becomes too much of a task, then I'll get out."

Shirley has none of the neurotic fears and feelings of insecurity that afflict many young performers whose rise to stardom is more of a polevault than a climb.

"I don't believe in being afraid," she said. "There are too many worthwhile things in life to do to let yourself be overtaken by fear. Why should anyone let fear be a major factor?"

Shirley Jones doesn't simply act wholesome. The girl is wholesome. But she doesn't want Hollywood to make it a kind of boring vice.

DOROTHY DIX

Lonely Widow Wants Pen-Pal

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have read your column for a long time, and think it's wonderful to have such a nice person to go to for advice. I'm a lonely widow, and since I have seen many letters in your column from women in my position, I wondered if some of us could get together — by mail.

My job leaves little time for church or other activities and my spare time is very lonely. Could you find some people my age (late 50s) who would like to write? I'll answer any mail you send me.

Dear Bonnie: It's so rewarding to have my column read by nice people like you. To anyone who would like a charming correspondent, I heartily recommend you and will be very happy to forward letters.

Dear Dorothy Dix: When a boy asks me to go steady, how can I refuse without hurting his feelings?

Dear Teeny: Simply say you're not ready for steady dating; that you prefer to be friends with all boys rather than to isolate yourself with one. Be tactful, and his feelings will be saved.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm the oldest of eight cousins and we have frequent family gatherings at my grandmother's. Because I'm the oldest, I seem to be blamed for everything the other youngsters do. Everyone pets the youngest and makes a big fuss over her. Against my will, I find myself getting furiously jealous over her. How can I learn to love my cousins instead of disliking them?

Dear C. E.: Being the oldest involves responsibility, and carries a dignity that the other children can never attain. Be proud of your position. It's no distinction to be a spoiled brat, but it is something special to have the prestige of being the eldest.

If you can possibly get hold of a copy of "The Matriarch Chronicles" by G. B. Stern, read it and you'll gain appreciation of your position. Your library may have a copy of it. If anyone knows any place else where one can be obtained, please let me know. It's one of my favorite books.

Dear Dorothy Dix: A new boy recently moved into the neighborhood — and into my heart. We haven't really met yet, but when I found he was taking a general course, I changed from commercial. Now, he's gone to commercial and I'm afraid it will look funny if I change back to general. I don't want him to think I'm chasing him.

Dear W. A.: Now wherever would he get a notion like that! Surely there are activities in which general and commercial mix. Take and stick to — the course for which you are best suited, according to your capabilities and your teacher's opinions.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I've been married 12 years and am a good wife. As my husband readily admits, however, he takes delight in saying humiliating things to me when we're in company. If I answered him back, I know he'd stop but I want to be ladylike.

Dear Perplexed: Your ladylike composure need not be shattered by answering your husband's quips. Say it with a smile and you can get away with practically anything. Hubby knows he can get your goat; once he's lost that satisfaction his wisecracks will cease.

Site for Tech School Picked
LITTLE ROCK (UP) — A 15-acre site in southwest Pine Bluff has been chosen for construction of a new vocational-technical school, the State Board of Education announced here Saturday.

Education Commissioners Arch Ford said the city of Pine Bluff would provide one-third of the $45,000 purchase price.

Pine Bluff was selected as the location of the state's first vocational-technical school a month ago. The 1937 Legislature appropriated $500,000 to construct and equip the school.

Faubus Stands

troops had invaded their school dressing rooms was true despite White House denials.

Arnold Sikes, the governor's secretary, told newsmen: "I had eight telephone calls last night from girls and their mothers who said the charges were true."

Sikes made his statement as other capital sources said Faubus determined to play out his challenge of the federal government to an uncertain end and "won't back down" for both political and economic reasons.

The governor's "stand pat" position was underscored by his bitter exchange with the White House on the dressing room charge.

Sikes refused to give the names of the persons who called him. He said he was told there were "two specific instances," one occurring just before a seventh period girls' gym class, another involving a girls' washroom.

Sikes explained only the gym class incident, saying: "They said they had heard the door where they were dressing. One of the girls was partially undressed."

He said the girls and mothers telephoned him after they had tried to reach Faubus by phone without success. He explained: "They said they had heard the news and just wanted to confirm what the governor had said."

The White House denial of the accusation as "untrue and vulgar" brought a "we'll prove it when the time comes" retort from the 47-year-old governor.

The Army in strong terms denied its troops had invaded the dressing rooms.

A school official termed Faubus claim "ridiculous."

The governor, told last night of White House reaction, shot back this reply: "What does the White House know about it 2,000 miles away? We'll prove it when the time comes."

A number of Central High girls said they knew nothing about any such trespass into the dressing rooms.

Faubus said his information

Fourth of Quints Dies in France

TOULON, France (UP) — Roland, last but one of the Christoffe quintuplets, died about 4 a. m. today after a five-day fight for his life.

Doctors would make no prediction about the chances of survival for the remaining baby, Michele. The five babies were born Wednesday, three months prematurely to Mrs. Camille Christoffe, wife of a social security official. A boy and two girls died within 12 hours.

came from parents.

They accompanied the Negroes when they move from class to class but remain outside classroom doors.

The school and campus neighborhood were quiet yesterday. No crowds gathered, no students heckled the Negroes when they entered, and all appeared calm in the corridors.

Faubus' charges were made yesterday in a letter to Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, commanding the military units at the school and the reserves nearby. The governor made the letter public.

The general returned the letter unanswered, James C. Hagerly, presidential press secretary, said. Walker did so gingerly, because it was addressed to "the commander of the occupation force."

Walker issued a statement saying the Army and the school staff had received no complaint and that "the soldiers... are precluded by orders from activities which might be subject to criticism as described by the governor."

Nothing Seems Settled at Little Rock

Editor's Note — Nine Negro students are in school, but is Little Rock's problem solved? A Pulitzer prizewinning reporter, who has been on the scene since the violence started, leans back for a long, objective look at what has happened and what's to come. (This is the first of five articles.)

By HELMAN MORIN

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—This is the eye of the hurricane, the dead center of the storm.

There is the same deceptive calm, the same oppressive feeling in the air, the sense of vast and destructive forces swirling toward disaster.

This is Little Rock. A police car siren screams in the street. People who wouldn't have noticed it a month ago look up anxiously now. A riot starting? "I've got a loaded shotgun beside my bed," says a man. If he will resist for it.

A night the telephoning starts, the threats and warnings. "Who is this?" a click. The phone goes dead.

The calls come to parents. Segregationists would like to force a mass boycott of the Central High School. "There's going to be trouble at school," better keep your daughter home. No name. They come to the father of a boy who delivers the Arkansas Gazette, the Little Rock newspaper to Gov. Orval Faubus. "If you don't want something to happen to your kid, . . . No name."

They even come to legislators. A man's voice says to State Sen. Charles Yingling, "understand you're in favor of a cooling off period, instead of closing the schools — there's a stab at the undertaker's, where you'll be cooling off."

It's hardest on the parents. Most are letting the children go to the high school — and worrying over what the die-hards may do in reprisal.

Some are keeping their boys and girls away — and worrying for a different reason. A woman, in tears, calls the segregationist Capitol Citizens Council. "My daughter wants to go back. She's falling behind in her studies. What shall I do?"

Soldiers inside a high school. Lights and muttered threats, there.

Business slowed to a standstill. . . feeling between neighbors so deep it may never be bridged. . . the atmosphere heavy with tension, dark and brooding.

Even seeing Little Rock today, you can't believe it. Federal troops in a Southern city! Bayonets pointed at American men and women? Impossible. All that ended 90 years ago. It couldn't happen in this day — and age.

But it has happened. Force confronts raw force now. Twice a day, the power of federal authority pushes through massive resentment, to take nine Negro students to school, against the wishes of most of the people. Seventh per cent? Eight? Who can say?

CHAPTER II

The camp saloon was a low, ill-lighted cubicle hardly larger than a closet. It was a place where men played cards, passed out to men playing cards, passed out to men playing cards. . .

He took the impact of a gun barrel against his shoulder.

THE STORY: Dave Sharadin, a Confederate cavalryman, returns from the Civil War battlefields. He is the son of Bluet fields. He is the son of Bluet fields. . .

On the trip up the Colorado River by steamship, he notices a mysterious woman, Sherry Burdette, who is traveling alone.

able urge to judge first hand the type of men that were settling the country. Block 3 would have them swarming over its boundary lines. . .

Hard cases without principles to restrain them when they tired of searching for gold. Farmers who had brought their plows and would try to cut up the range.

A man said loudly, "If you were on the ground first, turn him out. We ain't going to have claims jumped here!"

Dave's glance swept past two men playing cards, passed out to men playing cards. . .

It surprised him when he swung around for a look at the Brays that the father and his son were no longer in the saloon. Their cards lay in a soggy circle left by an over-lured glass.

He tossed a silver coin to the counter and wheeled from the bar.

Outside, the sudden quietness of the camp reached him. It was a stillness he hadn't noticed on approaching the saloon, and now as he retraced his trail to the river his glance ran to the shadows between the slab-board shacks. There was a mood to this camp that was unhealthy.

A few yards ahead on the river trail a stone turned over making a soft noise. Dave scanned under the willows without finding any sign of movement. The earth here had been worked and re-worked for color until it lay heaped about in barren mounds. There was no underbrush remaining to rustle and so give him a second's warning.

His fingers closed over the smooth hardness of his gun's grip-plates. Instead of finishing his draw he laced out with a sharp warning.

"That you, Bray?"

His straining ears picked out the sound of breathing behind him. It was too late to complete his draw, and in that swift instant he saw how the Brays had tricked him — one moving ahead through the timber to attract his attention while the others ambushed him from behind. He wisted at the waist, throwing himself to one side, and took the impact of a gun barrel against his shoulder. Swiftly he wheeled, his elbow cocking about the other man's neck. "No," Dave grunted. "I guess not!"

He began backing, then dragging the burly figure over the trail. It was Lou the elder of the Brays, fighting over every inch of ground. Abruptly Dave let go and threw a full-powered blow, sinking his knuckles into the man's belly. It was a fist delivered with all the weight of Dave's body behind it, aimed at the man's groin. The man fell to the trail gasping for air.

Now Dave took another smashing pistol barrel, this time across the forehead. Blinding light flashed out from the darkness, a flare of white pain that left Dave humbled and half senseless.

Still another pistol blow dropped against his temple. His knees gave way, spilling him to the ground.

At no time did he completely lose consciousness. His fingers closed over the man's trousers. He drew the solid, scuffling figure of young Bray toward him so violently that the man's pants gave away with a ripping sound. In brief fear the yellow-haired Bray jerked himself off balance and fell with a thud. But this was the younger Bray, swift-moving and strong. He was at Dave in a rebound.

"I've got him, Lou!"

By now the older Bray had regained his feet. Father and son began kicking at Dave's ribs. He felt the earth swinging about, a darkness closing in around him. Lou Bray's restraining words registered against Dave's brain.

"Better not kill him, son."

"He's on his way to Wolf Creek and you're only going to have to do it later. Give it to him now."

"I figure not, son. They'd hang you in this camp."

"All right. But we'll show the Sharadins we ain't dirt to be swept out from underfoot!"

His body continued to thrash beneath the impact of their driven boots, then a long while after a rousing deep darkness brought its stifling relief.

LOU BRAY'S (WOLF CREEK) Weaver, tele-vision producer and comedian, and actress Reita Ann Green were married at the Laurel Canyon home of architect Ray Donley yesterday.

Weaver, probably best known for his recording of "Beedle-bum," a takeoff on a horse race announcer, is 40, and his bride 21.

Superior Judge Samuel Blake read the marriage vows.

Dr. Euclid M. Smith of Hot Springs, Arkansas, Saturday was named president-elect of the Association of American Spas. He takes office next year.
